

School of Business MBA Academic Integrity Policy General Principles

Academic Integrity is the foundation of any well functioning academic community. Thus, it is imperative that we maintain high and exacting academic integrity standards if we are to succeed in building a community of business leaders of tomorrow. As the conduct of business is based first and foremost on trust, so our success depends on our ability to trust each other.

The School of Business affirms the academic integrity rules and guidelines set out by the University of Wisconsin – Madison and holds all members of the academic community – students, faculty and staff – to the exact same high standards of academic integrity. Violations of the code of academic misconduct will result in an investigation and may result in severe sanctions according to the University and School of Business guidelines. Below are listed a number of relevant websites for your review.

Academic Misconduct: Guide for Students:

http://www.wisc.edu/students/Code_of_Conduct.htm

UWS 14, Regent Rule on Academic Misconduct:

<http://www.wisc.edu/students/conduct/uws14.htm>.

Signed,

Dean François Ortalo-Magné

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read 'F. Ortalo-Magné'.

Associate Dean Chip Hunter, Wisconsin MBA

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read 'Chip Hunter'.

Core Faculty